SNOHOMISH COUNTY TOMORROW STEERING COMMITTEE CITIZEN REPRESENTATIVE

The Snohomish County Tomorrow (SCT) Steering Committee (one of the five committees of SCT) includes Elected Official Representatives as well as six Citizen Representatives. These citizens fully participate in the business of the Steering Committee, except for the voting. They bring unique perspectives from many arenas of the county, including rural communities as well as environmental and transportation interests.

The SCT Steering Committee currently has one Citizen Representative vacancy. Any citizen interested in the position is encouraged to contact Cynthia Pruitt. Ms. Pruitt will review the meeting schedule and work with interested parties to full out a nomination form.

The Snohomish County Tomorrow Steering Committee is the policy advisory body of the Snohomish County Tomorrow planning process. The Steering Committee membership is comprised of one elected representative from each of the cities and towns in the County, the Tulalip Tribes, and three elected representatives from Snohomish County. The County representatives shall include the Snohomish County Executive, the Chair of the Snohomish County Council, and a second County Council member. All of these members are called the Elected Official Representatives.

These members select six additional members who are Snohomish County citizens at large. These six members are called Citizen Representatives. The Steering Committee operates by general powers and authority granted to each municipal entity to participate in cooperative inter-jurisdictional planning efforts.
